Brewer Expands Corporate Sales Team

The Brewer Company is pleased to announce the addition of John Pierson to its corporate sales management team.

John has been named Director of Corporate Accounts and brings a wealth of experience to the Brewer team. John's 12 years of experience span both marketing and sales management in industries such as environmental remediation products, biocides and disinfectants, and medical equipment. He is a regular contributor to several leading healthcare publications and has been an active member in industry organizations like APIC and ASHE.

"I am very excited to continue the development of our sales team", Paul Siepmann, President and CEO of The Brewer Company, LLC stated. "John will contribute greatly to our growing sales organization and our overall market strategy."

The Brewer Company is known for creating intelligent and innovative furnishing solutions that advance healthcare. The Brewer Assist Power Procedure Table, Brewer Access High-Low Exam Table (HIDA Product of the Year), and the Brewer Access Exam Table are examples of the many products Brewer has designed using a proprietary clinical research and development process delivering the most in patient comfort and safety while providing efficient workflow for the office. Brewer also offers a complete line of seating, lighting, and support products that are designed around enhancing the patient and clinician experience.
